Elementary and Secondary Teaching

- Third Grade Teacher, Northside Elementary, Angleton Independent School District, Angleton, TX. Lead teacher for block-scheduled sections of math, science, and social studies. Guided and mentored a Texas A&M student teacher during her student teaching experience. Assisted in the achievement of an “Exemplary” state accreditation status at Northside and, for the first time, as a district during the 1998-1999 school year. Had all students taking the state assessment pass the math section. (August 1998-May 1999)
- Fourth Grade Teacher, Wild Peach Elementary, Columbia-Brazoria Independent School District, West Columbia, TX. Lead teacher for both self-contained and block-scheduled classroom settings. Assisted in the achievement of a “Recognized” status for the first time at Wild Peach Elementary during the 1996-1997 school year and maintained that status in 1997-1998. Served as a New Teacher Mentor during the 1997-1998 school year. (August 1996-May 1998)
- Substitute Teacher, Angleton Independent School District, Angleton, TX. (February 1996 - May 1996)
- Teaching Assistant and Editor of Inside AISD (district newsletter), Angleton High School, Angleton Independent School District, Angleton, TX. Interacted with students and teachers from a variety of grade levels in order to report on the activities and progress being made within the district. Responsible for interviewing and photographing both students and teachers in order to use the information for the articles I wrote and laid out for the paper. Assisted the high school journalism instructor in planning and teaching

RESEARCH GRANTS AND AWARDS

- Hewitt, A., & Pinkerton, K. (Spring/Fall 2015). University of Houston-Downtown/Union Pacific Railroad Grant Award, $4700, for, “Phonological Awareness Activity/Field Service Project House of Tiny Treasures.” This project allows our UHD teacher candidates to practice both collaborative teaching and phonological awareness instruction in a school setting. In addition, they are able to assist HTT parents and students in recognizing authentic phonological awareness activities and the importance of these concepts.
- Pinkerton, K. (Spring 2014). University of Houston-Downtown CTLE Professional Development Grant Award, course enrollment fee plus $250 stipend to be applied toward online course development training offered through the Online Learning Consortium. Explored in more detail the theoretical models and frameworks that are being applied to online education. Evaluated and improved my online course based on quality metrics.

- Pinkerton, K. & Hewitt, A. (Spring 2014-Fall 2014). 2014 University of Houston-Downtown High Impact Practices Award, $3000, for research topic, “Using Field-based Team Teaching Techniques to Enhance Phonological Awareness Training Experiences for UHD Teacher Candidates and Public School Teachers.” READ 3303 and ECH 2311 students will collaborate across courses to engage in assessment-driven instruction of phonological awareness with kindergarten students at our partner school. Professors from both courses will provide professional development related to best practices in phonological awareness instruction for kindergarten teachers. Teacher candidates from two courses will put theory into practice in these field-based experiences. Teacher candidates will learn about collaborative teaching, practice instructional methods, and increase understandings of phonological awareness, something important for successful completion of the TExES exam. Kindergarten teachers will receive training in phonological awareness teaching methods, which can be directly applied in classrooms.
- Pinkerton, K. & Hewitt, A. (2013-2014). 2013-2014 University of Houston-Downtown Faculty Development Award, $7000, for research topic, “Building UHD Teacher Candidates’ Phonological Awareness through Faculty Team Teaching.” Project purpose includes: Piloting innovative team teaching model, allowing both professors to gain insight about effective instructional techniques, while improving curriculum and instruction for both ECH 2311 and READ 3303, specifically in the area of integrating phonological awareness into the lesson plan; encouraging students to build and extend knowledge learned in ECH course to READ course and allowing students to gain varied ways of thinking, as well as experiencing approaches that reflect complementary strategies; increasing performance on the TExES - to ensure the teacher candidates hold knowledge about phonological awareness development and teaching, a skill that is troubling for teachers.
- Beebe, R., Hogue, B., Pinkerton, K., & Quander, R. (Fall 2012). 2012 CREATE Professional Development Award, $2850, for research topic, “The Art of Questioning,” investigated in collaboration with North Shore Elementary, Galena Park ISD. August 2012: Conducted one-day, in-service with North Shore teachers. My topic of presentation was teaching students to ask higher level literacy questions in relation to viewing texts. October 2012: One, half-day observation of second, fourth and fifth grade literacy classrooms. Observation included documentation of frequency of questions asked, identification of question generators, types of questions asked, wait time for answers related to questions, and validation of answers.
- Pinkerton, K. (Fall 2008). University of Houston-Downtown Quality Enhancement Plan Grant Recipient, Fall 2008-$2000. This university-level grant was received for the improvement of the field-based literacy course that I taught at a Houston-area elementary school. Materials were purchased which aided in the enhancement of the experiential learning taking place in my course. Course learning was improved, as evidenced through student survey and portfolio qualitative analysis.
