Course Description:

A study of those factors which contribute to the competitiveness of businesses, industries, and societies operating within a world economy. Primary focus is on the interaction of management, labor, and government policies.

Course Objectives:

1. Develop an awareness of the competitive issues facing nations, companies, and individuals in a global economy.
2. Develop an understanding of the issues, policies, and actions that nations should pursue to develop and maintain raising standards of living for its citizens.
3. Develop an understanding of the issues, strategies, and actions that companies should pursue to develop and maintain organizational strengths that will endure the competitive environment of global markets.
4. Consider the issues that are relevant at an individual, personal level to retain personal competitiveness in a smaller, more dynamic, and intense labor market.
5. Develop personal action plans for participating at all three levels of creating more competitive nations, companies, and persons.

Course Texts:

Pankaj Ghemawat. World 3.0: Global Prosperity and How to Achieve It. Boston: Harvard Business Review, 2011. ISBN: 978-1-4221-3864-9. (Designated W3.0 on syllabus.)

Tarun Khanna and Krishan G. Palepu. Winning in Emerging Markets: A Road Map for Strategy and Execution. Boston: Harvard Business Press, 2010. ISBN: 978-1-4221-6695-6. (Designated WEM on syllabus.)

Richard M. Steers, Carlos J. Sanchez-Runde, and Luciara Nardon. Management Across Cultures: Challenges and Strategies. New York: Cambridge University Press, 2010. Paperback. ISBN: 9780521734974. (Designated MaC on syllabus.)

The first two books listed (WEM, and W3.0) are “trade” books rather than traditional texts. Trade books are often much less expensive than traditional texts. These should be available from online resources like Amazon.com, BarnesandNoble.com, etc. The university book store does not carry an inventory of very many trade books, but can special order them. This option is likely to take longer than the online bookstores. The Management Across Cultures text may be available through the university bookstore and online sources. Be sure to note that this text (MaC) is available in hardback and paperback versions. Needless to say, the list price for the paperback is much less expensive.

All three books are available as e-books for both the Kindle (Amazon) and the Nook (Barnes and Noble). Pricing reviewed June 27, 2012.

Country Assessment Paper and Discussions:

The Country Assessment Paper will include a country competitive assessment for two countries. Students will select two countries from a list provided on the assignment sheet for this assignment on the course page using the following constraints for their selection. Students may choose no more than one country from each stage (or combination of stages) of economic development as outlined with the Global Competitiveness Index (three groups) and only one from a geographic region (four groups). The United States may not be chosen as a country for this assignment.

Three stages of economic development are:

1. Countries in stage 1
2. Countries in transition from stage 1 to stage 2 and countries in stage 2
3. Countries in transition from stage 2 to stage 3 and countries in stage 3

The geographic regions are:

1. Africa and Middle East
2. Americas (North America, South America, and Caribbean countries)
3. Asia and Pacific Islands (including Australia and New Zealand)
4. Europe

The issues to be researched and discussed will include economic, legal, social and demographic, access to technology and infrastructure and other competitive issues.

To allow opportunities for discussion of the countries' competitiveness, discussion topics will be set up for this activity and will be opened during the time that the papers are under development and will remain open for a couple of weeks after the due date for the papers. Student papers will be shared with the class for students in the class to review country paper prepared by other students.

See the schedule for major assignments for the specific dates for this assignment. See the assignment instructions for further details about this assignment.

Homework Assignments:

This portion of the grading will include several assignments that will be graded. The assignments are not equally weighted in the course grade.

1. "Where is stuff made? and What stuff is made where?" (WISM & WSIMW)

For this assignment students will examine the country of origin for a variety of products and develop lists of the sources of the products. Students will then makes some observations and draw some inferences about the sourcing of manufactured products. This assignment is referenced below.

2 and 3. Contemporary Issues Papers.

These homework items will be relatively short position papers (four or five pages) for contemporary and, perhaps, controversial topics. One will be over a business or government topic; the second will be over a topic with more of a social context.

4. Management Across Cultures: Personal Reflections and Improvement Plans

This assignment will include two or three questions for each chapter relating to personal reflections, applications, and improvement plans. These will generally one to two pages for each chapter.

General Discussions:

The general discussions associated with the readings and current events will be a graded item in this course. The discussions (or threaded discussions) will focus on current events relating to global competitiveness and the readings assigned during the term. Be sure to focus your comments on issues related to the forum or topic you have selected. The discussions should include proper language: keep it clean and non-offensive. Some occasions may exist where use of slang and other potentially “bad” language is somewhat required to illustrate the intended effect of the communication. Use good grammar and spelling. Some of you need to remember that, like me, you do not touch type and check your postings carefully before sending them. The readings discussion

Summary Activity:

The Summary Activity will serve as the final exam for the course. It will be designed to provide students an opportunity to reflect on their semester of study of global competitiveness and relate it to various contexts and applications.

Reading Assignment Schedule:

The readings will include the various course texts and perhaps other articles as assigned and/or provided in the course page. The tentative schedule including the reading assignment and open and closing dates for the discussions is provided below. The closing time will be 11:59 on the closing date.

W3.0 indicates World 3.0.

Unless otherwise stated on the assignment sheet, the due time for all written assignments is 11:59 pm CDT on the day and date that the assignment is due. For example, the due day, date and time for Homework 1: WISM & WSIMW? is Monday, July 16, 2012 at 11:59 pm CDT.

Homework Assignment 1: Where is this stuff made? and What stuff is made where?

This homework activity involves two rather simple observations and a reporting of the findings. Students will also need to try to draw some conclusions about their findings. The written assignment is due Monday, September 12th.

The Lists:

One day as you are preparing for your day and getting dressed make a note of the country of origin of the clothes you are wearing (for underwear, simple use underwear because we really do not need too much detail about this).

Take a shopping trip to a mall (department store or specialty stores) or a “big box store” (like Wal-Mart, Target, Home Depot, Lowe’s, Best Buy, etc) and identify a variety of products and their country of origin.

The Observations

What can you say about the kinds of things that are “Made in the USA”? What kinds of things are not made in the USA? What patterns do you see?

Course Policy for Drops and Incomplete Grades:

Students often believe that Internet courses are independent study courses and that they can work at their own pace throughout the course. Although the schedule does provide for some flexibility and does not require class attendance (or commuting to and from class), student discipline to meet due dates for the assignments, projects, and exams as required. If a student gets behind and decides that they should drop the course, they will be evaluated on the work completed up to the point of the request to drop. Generally, students will receive a DP (drop passing) if they are reasonably current with their assignments and a DP will be provided until the “Last day to drop a course or withdraw from school.” Incomplete grades are usually reserved for students who have a family or medical emergency during the last couple of weeks of classes. For students who are allowed to receive an Incomplete of this course, the policy in this course will be that students must complete the course by the end of October 2007 or their course grade will receive a one-letter reduction. The University policy states that Incompletes that are not removed by the end of the next long semester (May 2009) will turn into an “F.” Please maintain regular “attendance” (that is, stay up with your work and participation) in this class to avoid these problems.

Important notice: Unless otherwise stated in a specific assignment, all assignments are due by 11:59 pm central time zone on the date the assignment is due.

Software to use during the course:

Students will find most of the course materials in the eCollege course management program and will become familiar with the features of the program as you use them. A key area will be the discussions that will be the bulletin board or discussion board we will use. What I hope will happen is that the discussions become conversations.

Format for Assignments:

Virtually all assignments must be turned in using the following paper and typing format preferred by the instructor. An example of an assignment that might be turned in not using this format would be a resume, your personal sales communication document in a job search. In situations where the APA format does not align with the instructor preferences (like for title pages and tables of content) use these instructor guidelines.

1. Typed, double-spaced
2. Times New Roman, 12 font (only)
3. One-inch margins on all sides: top, bottom, right and left
4. Paper size should be standard, 8-1/2 by 11 inches
5. No headers or footers, except for a page number (if desired)
6. No title page or table of contents is required, instead place your name on first line in left-hand corner with a title for the assignment centered on the next line.
7. Preferably no underlines or italics (use bold for these requirements or preferences for paper titles, headings, etc.)

8. References should be complete (in that they can be used to find the source) and consistent. Students should adhere to APA style. A complete reference will include author (if known), source (magazine, journal, website, etc.), date of publication (or retrieval), etc.

General Information about Communication and the Course:

Generally, using the home email and phone will be more efficient in reaching the instructor. Although the instructor will be on campus two or so days each week, he will check his home email virtually every day multiple times. The instructor returns emails at his home email within twenty-four hours if he has an answer to your question. For example, if you email him about the grade on an assignment and he does not yet have it graded, he has no information and will likely wait until it is graded. Also, the instructor usually tries to reserve Saturday noon until Sunday afternoon as personal and family time. The schedule in this course will follow two streams of activities: reading assignments and written assignments. Student should take care to maintain the flow of these activities with keeping a good schedule to stay on top of the various assignments.

Comment on Academic Honesty

There seems to be a belief among many that anything found on the Internet is free to use as one wishes. The "cut and paste" option also makes it quite tempting. However, information on the web must be properly cited just as you would any "hard copy" periodicals or books. Keep the following in mind:

1. It is generally not advisable to quote anything verbatim in a paper unless there is an overriding reason to do so, such as the use of a particular phrase or sentence that illustrates a point well and should not be changed. When you do quote directly, you must place the statement in quotes in addition to a footnote at the end of the quote (or for longer quotes, offset the quoted section). Not placing the statement in quotes implies that the wording is your own.
2. Simply changing a few words in a sentence (for example, "large" to "big") may alleviate the need for quotes (depending on how much you change), but it is not the best way to go. If you are not going to provide a direct quote, then the material should be stated in your own terms. Changing a couple of words implies laziness.

3. Every idea you get from another source must be cited. Placing 100 citations in a paper does not imply that the work is not original, but that you did a proper job of giving credit where it was due.

4. The real danger in a "cut and paste" approach to report writing is that you end up including a lot of information that is related to the topic about which you are writing, but does not really address what you are trying to say. Putting things in your own words allows you to focus your comments more effectively.

5. Material that would be considered to be common knowledge in the field (like the general strategic management model) would not likely require a citation.

6. Some papers may be graded using turnitin.com software.

Any deviation from the guidelines concerning quotes and citations constitutes plagiarism, as it suggests that you are trying to submit someone else's work and creativity as your own. If you have any questions, please let me know.

Plagiarism represents disregard for academic standards and is strictly against University policy. Plagiarized work will result in an "F" for the course and further administrative sanctions permitted under University policy. Guidelines for properly quoting someone else's writings and the proper citing of sources can be found in the APA Publication Manual. If you do not understand the term "plagiarism", or if you have difficulty summarizing or documenting sources,

Papers may be reviewed electronically by Turnitin.com or a similar resource.
