Course Description:

Critical reading is an important skill for college-level academic study, and this course is designed to help students develop their critical reading skills.

This course contains two elements:
1. The “lecture” section, where you will meet each week on Monday at 2:00 to discuss the week’s reading assignment and your response to that assignment
2. The “lab” section on e-College, where you will be required to complete weekly quizzes small-group discussion, and a weekly summary of that discussion.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Students who successfully complete ENG 110 should be able to:

1. Identify and employ critical reading strategies
2. Identify the main idea or central argument in a text
3. Identify and understand potential bias within a text
4. Identify rhetorical strategies used by authors to support arguments
5. Recognize and identify organizational elements of writing
6. Explicate a difficult text for meaning and understanding

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Here’s how your grade will be determined:

Attendance: You must attend the weekly lecture on Monday at 2:00 PM. If you miss more than TWO classes, you can’t earn higher than a B in the class. If you miss more than THREE classes, you will not pass ENG 110 and you will be required by the university to take the course again. Attendance is taken at the beginning of every class. Students who come to class late will not be given partial-credit for attendance.

20% Online discussion boards: In the e-College space, you will be split into smaller groups. In those smaller groups, you will be given a discussion prompt about that week’s reading. You are required to post at least once for each prompt. Discussion prompts are posted on Monday after class and will remain open until class time the following Monday. To clarify: your posts (and quiz) are due by classtime on the day we discuss the text.

10% Weekly discussion summary: Between the end of class on Monday and Wednesday morning at 8:00 AM, you are required to submit a summary of your group’s discussion.

30% Weekly reading quizzes: Each week there will be a four-question quiz on the assigned reading for that week. The questions are multiple-choice, and the quiz can only be taken once. These quizzes test your ability to find the main ideas in an article, understand the rhetorical techniques authors use to make their arguments or get their points across, etc. In short, these quizzes test your critical reading skills. To clarify: your quiz is due by classtime on the day we discuss the text.

40% What is Critical Reading? Handout: Relying on what you’ve learned and experienced in this class, how would you define critical reading to someone just learning about it? What advice, guidelines, or tips could you offer to someone enrolled in this class next semester?
Remember that your audience will be students who visit the writing center, so think about that audience when designing the handout and deciding what information to include. Also keep in mind that grammar, spelling, and lay-out counts on this assignment.

This handout will be graded by a panel of Writing Center tutors and writing teachers. Two members of the panel will grade your handout for quality of information, style and grammar, and indication that you understand the concept of critical reading. They will award your handout a score out of five possible points. The final grade will be derived from an average of the two scores given by the panel members.

COURSE AND UNIVERSITY PROCEDURES/POLICIES

Course Specific Procedures:

Academic Honesty
The official departmental policy: “Instructors in the Department of Literature and Languages do not tolerate plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonestly. Instructors uphold and support the highest academic standards, and students are expected to do likewise. Penalties for students guilty of academic dishonesty include disciplinary probation, suspension, and expulsion. (Texas A&M University-Commerce Code of Student Conduct 5.b [1,2,3])

If you ever have any questions about a particular use of a source, always ask your instructor. They want you to avoid plagiarism, too, so they will help you do so whenever and wherever they can. Do what you can to take advantage of this support—to look innocent in addition to being innocent when it comes to charges of plagiarism.

Students who commit academic dishonest acts should expect to fail the assignment in question and, depending on the nature of the offense, the entire course.

On University-Sanctioned Activities

To accommodate students who participate in university-sanctioned activities, the First-Year Composition Program offers sections of this course at various times of the day and week. If you think that this course may conflict with a university-sanctioned activity in which you are involved--athletics, etc.--please see your instructor after class on the first day.
