COURSE DESCRIPTION

A didactic and experiential seminar course in marital and family counseling/therapy for advanced students. Emphasis on the development of the students’ therapeutic expertise in structural and strategic family intervention techniques.

Prerequisite: Counseling 611 or consent of instructor

REQUIRED TEXTS

COURSE OBJECTIVES

For Students to:

1. Become knowledgeable about new approaches to marriage and family therapy both theoretically and in application.

2. To develop skills in using the techniques which have grown out of these approaches

3. To develop their own theoretical approach toward working with families

A seminar is defined as “a group of advanced students at a college or university, meeting regularly and informally with a professor for discussion of research problem.” Hence, the usual lecture format will not be followed. The instructor will serve as a resources person, and each student will be expected to have read relevant materials, participate in and to CONTRIBUTE TO ALL, discussions. Since a seminar is advanced and this is a doctoral level course, evidence of conceptualization of material beyond that of master’s level courses is important. This course is designed to significantly advance the students’ knowledge, understanding, and practice of contemporary approaches to family therapy/counseling.

Observation of family in counseling: An effort will be made for the instructor to see a family in the clinic in Commerce campus at some point during the semester, so that students will have an opportunity to observe and to incorporate the ideas being discussed in the course into their thinking about doing therapy. This will depend upon the willingness of families to be observed and availability of families at this time period. It may also alter the calendar for the syllabus.

Course Outline: The following topics will be covered in the course:
- Attachment Theory/security in families
- Change in families
- Ethical/Multicultural issues with families
- Intergenerational Therapy
- Strategic Therapy/MRI/Milan
- Structural Therapy
- Solution Focused/Brief Therapy
- Narrative/Social Constructivist/Post Modern Therapy
- Experiential/Humanistic Therapy

Requirements:

Theory Presentation/discussion: Students will be expected to present on one or two of the above theories. The presentation will be based on the student’s “out of class” preparation/reading of the theory (must include a minimum of one major book on the theory). Additional current journal articles should be included; video may be used, when available, to augment the presentation. Students presenting the theory will also provide two related articles to all class members. At least one of these articles MUST be clinically/application based. These articles will be provided to the class one week prior to the presentation of the theory. Student presenting the theory will also be responsible for “directing” the discussion of the articles. Additionally student presenting the theory will conduct a mock counseling session (with the student serving as therapist) applying the theory, based on a hypothetical client issue provided by the instructor. Assistance for the student/therapist will be provided by the instructor, as needed, and the purpose of the session will be more to help see the theory in action, rather than try to provide expert therapy. Each student will also provide his/her observation of all theories presented. Each student will pick up a theory of his choice to identify with. Each students will turn in 15 multiple choice questions on his/her presentation to the instructor with correct answered marked with the reference.

Presentation should include the following:
- Background/history of the theory
- Key concepts
Assessment/treatment
Techniques
Role of the therapist
Ethical/multicultural implications
Types of cases most likely and least likely to be effective with

Expectations of Students

1. Attendance of all classes
2. Reading of assignments in advance
3. Active participation in discussion and practice.
4. Commitment to own growth.

Evaluation

Student attendance 30%
Presentations and mock counseling session 20%
Participation and contribution to class discussion 20%
15 Multiple Choice Question Creation 10%
Final Exam 20%

STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES
The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) is a federal anti-discrimination statute that provides comprehensive civil rights protection for persons with disabilities. Among other things, this legislation requires that all students with disabilities be guaranteed a learning environment that provides for reasonable accommodation of their disabilities.
