CATALOG DESCRIPTION OF COURSE

650. Instructional Theory and Methods in Counselor Education. Three semester hours
This course is designed to develop/improve counselor educator skills including planning units or courses, delivering instruction, and assessing learner outcomes. The course also addresses ethical standards for counselor educators. Although the primary focus is on teaching counselors-in-preparation, students will acquire knowledge and develop skills that are applicable to other situations such as presenting at professional conferences and conducting staff development.
Prerequisite: doctoral standing or consent of instructor.

GENERAL COURSE INFORMATION

As a core requirement for doctoral students in the department, this course provides students with basic knowledge about teaching in counselor education. Although a required core course, this content not directly addressed as one of the five core areas of the doctoral comprehensive examination.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Students will demonstrate knowledge of:

1. How to prepare for teaching a counselor education graduate course, including (a) content and scope of an appropriately written syllabus, and (b) writing goals and objectives (to include CACREP standards when applicable).
2. Needs and characteristics of adult learners—including the effects of social and cultural issues—in counselor education and how to adjust instruction accordingly.
3. Techniques for connecting with, relating to, and motivating learners.
4. Classroom management techniques and instructional strategies and methods.
5. Media and technology that can be utilized during didactic and experiential instruction and how to use them effectively.
6. Techniques to assess student learning and methods of assigning final course grades in both didactic and experiential counseling courses.
7. The ethics of teaching, including content of the current American Counseling Association Code of Ethics regarding (a) responsibilities of counselor educators, (b) student welfare, (c) student responsibilities, (d) evaluation and remediation of students, (e) roles and relationships between counselor educators and students, and (f) multicultural/diversity competence in counselor education and training programs.

METHOD OF INSTRUCTION

Lecture, demonstration, small and large group discussion, experiential activities

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1. Participation/Attendance: Attendance in all sessions is critical. Regular attendance, arriving to class on time and staying until the end of class is expected. Students are expected to read the assigned material before class; be prepared to actively participate in class. Students will have many opportunities to contribute to the total learning experience through attendance, small and large group discussion, and assigned activities.
2. Practice Presentations: Students will make individual 30-minute practice presentations in class over the course of the semester. These presentations are intended as opportunities to apply what you are learning about instructional methods and techniques by teaching a brief unit to your colleagues in class. Presenters will receive feedback from classmates and the instructor; however, these presentations are not graded. They are credit/no credit practice activities that are included as part of participation/attendance. A sign-up sheet with presentation dates will be provided early in the semester. Students will determine presentation topics in consultation with the course instructor. The number of practice presentations depends on course enrollment.
3. Required Papers: Papers are due on the day noted in the syllabus. All papers are due at the beginning of the class period. Late papers will have 10% deducted from the final score.
4. Weekly Observation Journals. Each week students will turn in a 2-3 page journal on the previous week's class. The journal will consist of a section for each of the following headings:
 - Description of the class as a whole: identifying
 - (a) the mood (including changes, if any, that you noticed)
 - (b) topic of greatest interest to the class, and
 - (c) activity level (including what changes you noticed)
 - Observations of instructional methods and techniques used in the class session
 - (a) What methods and techniques did you observe the course instructor using?
 - (b) What questions do you have about what the instructor did or how she handled something going on in the class?
 - (c) What methods and techniques did you observe the student presenter using?
 - Relation of class session to outside experience
 - How you might use something we did in class in your future position as a counselor educator.
5. Reflection Paper. In this 5-7 page paper you will identify the five best (or worst) teachers from each level of your education and write a narrative about what stands out the most in what that teacher did (or didn't do); that is, what made him or her effective or ineffective. Complete guidelines for the reflection paper will be provided.

6. Syllabus Construction Project. This project gives students the opportunity to develop skills in writing a syllabus for a graduate-level counseling course. This paper will contain all major parts of a syllabus (e.g., course description, goals and objectives, textbook, assessment methods, assignments, course outline). Complete guidelines for the syllabus construction project will be provided.
7. Final Presentation: Each student will make one graded presentation at the end of the semester in which he or she demonstrates knowledge of instructional methods and techniques. In this presentation the student will teach a brief class to classmates and course instructor. The presenter will prepare and distribute a content outline, goals, and objectives for the presentation. The presentation will include a (brief) lecture and PowerPoint, and class discussion and/or group activity. Students will determine the topic of this final presentation in consultation with the course instructor. Complete guidelines and evaluation criteria for the final presentation will be provided.
